

This has been a big Challenge for me this term since it is the first time I have taught this group and I haven't seen more than half their faces. Out of 15 I have on average 5 show up to class, and most of the time I only have 2 that I feel are engaged asking question answering mine and I feel like I've establish more of a rapport with them. Then I have students handing in work late or not at all asking for extensions on deadlines saying that they are extremely overwhelmed, I have reached out for one on one time and I haven't had any one actually take the time. I feel if they were to be better engaged in class this might be less of a problem.
