Open Textbook Repositories

I have been actively searching for open textbooks to replace the currently used academic textbooks in the courses that I teach. In addition to the resources mentioned that have been already mentioned, I would like to highlight a few more repositories for open textbooks in various disciplines:

- Open Textbook Library (University of Minnesota): <https://open.umn.edu/opentextbooks>. This repository has an easy search function and I found a CER

Terri Burton: Year of the Nurse

Why is 2020 the Year of the Nurse?

Florence Nightingale's Birthday was May 12, 1820, 200 years ago. The World Health Organization announced that 2020 would be the Year of the Nurse and Midwife to coincide with the promotion of nursing and to help fill the void of 9 million nurses needed worldwide.

Here is a link to the World Health Organization: <https://www.who.int/news-room/compass/years-of-the>

App that simulates explorers

European Exploration: The Age of Discovery is a FREE simulation or a role play app much like Oregon Trail. I found it through MERLOT.

Full description: Explore the new world as a European power in the 15th Century by funding and sending expeditions out into the unknown. Hire captains, build ships and outfit voyages to learn of the wonders of the new world. Expeditions can be depressive

Great Ideas for Teaching Marketing

<https://www.greatideasforteachingmarketing.com/>

This site was developed for marketing professors and lecturers to use in class as an alternative to long case studies. There are over 300 activities and discussion exercises available free to use. They relate to specific topics that would be covered off in class.
