

Metaphor Activity

My teaching philosophy is central to 'The Power of Inclusion'. Long before political and social issues reached epidemic proportion – I came to the realization in the business world that your company or team manifests success when people come first, people are engaged and see before their very eyes the changes that THEY have fostered. The above image also breaks down perceived/conceived barriers that those with handicaps or disabilities are not 'up to the task'. It couldn't be further from the truth and great leaders should lay the foundation for a climate of inclusion on Day 1.
