The first post is by 'jsrivastava' 1m ago, titled 'Ensuring Understanding and Learning'. The text of the post discusses using H5P for course content, adding interactive 'force' words, and using checklist features. The second post is also by 'jsrivastava' 4m ago, with the same title. It discusses teaching international cohorts and the difficulty of adapting to their expectations. The interface includes a trash icon at the top, a search bar, and a bottom navigation bar with icons for home, back, search, camera, and more options.

Ensuring Understanding and Learning

I use H5P for most of my course content and I plan to add interactive "force" words to complete their work correctly. I will use the checklist feature, drag and drop exercises, written pan etc.

Ensuring Understanding and Learning

I teach a large amount of international cohorts. I find in general, they have difficulty adapting to our expectations but being online had really exacerbated this situation. Even with what I consider a step by step how to for both writing structure and assignment instructions, it is quite a disaster at the moment!
