The first post is from 1m ago and the second is from 4m ago. Both posts have the title 'Ensuring Understanding and learning'. The first post's text is partially visible and describes using H5P for course content and planning interactive elements. The second post's text is also partially visible and discusses teaching international cohorts and the challenges of online learning. At the bottom of the first post, there is a row of icons: an upward arrow, a refresh symbol, a globe, a camera, and a three-dot menu. Below the posts, there are some partially visible text elements like 'ss as the' and 'ly learni'.

Ensuring Understanding and learning

I use H5P for most of my course content and I plan in add interactive s to "force"- a word a student used, to complete their work correctly. I will use the checklist feature, drag and drop exercises, written pan etc.

Ensuring Understanding and learning

I teach a large amount of international cohorts. I find in general, they have difficulty adapting to our expectations but being online had really exacerbated this situation. Even with what I consider a step by step how to for both writing structure and assignment instructions, it is quite a disaster at the moment!
