

RECIPROCAL MENTORING

A Benefit of Co-teaching

Co-teaching encourages the sharing of...

- knowledge
- ideas
- resources
- time
- expertise
- and learning

...among those teaching.

Journal Article: Co-Teaching in Higher Education: Mentoring as Faculty Development

Web Resource: Team/Collaborative Teaching

Book: Co-Teaching in Higher Education: From Theory to Co-Practice

“Nugget” from Patch Eleven: What we Learned from Co-Teaching

“...co-teaching a course (or even co-developing a workshop) with another person provides the best reciprocal mentoring: you get to think through your teaching with someone who fully understands your context and even your particular students.”