Patch Twenty-Five: Write Your Life

“When I was doing my high school studies in India specialising in ‘Non-Medical Sciences’, the syllabus was vast, and huge. Exams were harder, and we must make sure that we score more than 33% out of the 100% marks to pass the course. Students have to cover all the syllabus in a span of 2-3 days in order to pass the course and exams were closed books, with multiple supervisors supervising the courses. When I moved to Canada, I loved the educational structure, that the marks are divided among various assignments and supposed to be covered in 15 weeks.”
