Confidence speaking in class

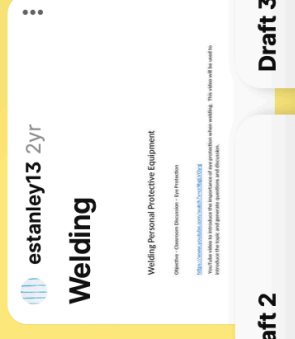

I recently taught a class of Community Integration through Cooperative Education (CICE) students. I absolutely loved working with these students; the students bring so many creative ideas. I found that the students, in general, would share their ideas with me individually, versus during class discussions. I realize that other students would benefit from the sharing of these ideas in class. I am hoping to find ways to have students engage in the larger classroom setting.

Course engagement in a group setting

I am wishing to use Mural to engage the students in a group context. I could use this to assist in facilitating conversations in class. The students do not need to share who is posting information. I will need to go over acceptable online behaviour; I feel this could be a great tool!
