Group Project

At the end of my Anatomy & Physiology course I have students do a group project that involves a paper on a system in the human body and an artistic impression of the body system. Prior to Covid this project was done in conjunction with Fine Arts students. This collaboration is no longer doable so I would like to find a way to utilize technology for students to do the art component as many claim not to have artistic ability.

Possible Solution

I would like to explore AI art as a means for the students to show artistic expression of their particular body system. This would decrease material costs to the groups for the projects.
